AI Product Manager with 6+ years turning customer evidence into product decisions for technical B2B and agentic AI products. Built the discovery, activation, and growth engine from zero at an AI-native startup: 32 discovery sessions, an 8-stage activation funnel that cut early abandonment 24%, $400K in qualified pipeline across 134 tracked accounts, and the first signed enterprise deal (Splunk, a Cisco company). Partners directly with founders, engineering, and design to ship what the evidence supports.

Sept 2025 - Present | San Francisco, CA

- Ran 32 discovery sessions with a 27-member design-partner cohort (18 at Director, VP, or SVP level from Atlassian, Databricks, Reddit, Splunk, and Taboola), translating findings into problem definitions, workflow decisions, and roadmap priorities.
- Cut early-stage onboarding abandonment 24% by instrumenting an 11-event Mixpanel and PostHog tracking plan across an 8-stage activation funnel, then prioritizing the onboarding redesign that shortened time to value ~1:40.
- Shipped 3 features with engineering (competitor research, battle cards, starred key features) by running a feedback repository where recurring evidence crossed thresholds into build decisions.
- Defined 22 lifecycle KPIs and a 5-touch re-engagement system tied to Calendly and HubSpot triggers, lifting beta cohort activation to 44% canvas exploration and 22% full-funnel completion.
- Generated $400K in qualified pipeline across 134 tracked accounts and helped land the first signed enterprise deal (Splunk, a Cisco company, converted from design partner to paid), connecting product proof to enterprise conversations without a sales team.
